Consider it a kind of American Idol for books (only without Simon). It works like this: Anyone with an idea for a book has 60 seconds to pitch it to a panel of judges. Pitch participants will be randomly selected from the pool of authors present. Arielle Eckstut and David Henry Sterry team up with Gayle Shanks to form a judging panel. The judges will critique everything from idea and style to your idea's marketplace viability, and much more. Whether potential authors pitch their ideas, or simply listen to trained professionals critique each presentation, Pitchapalooza is educational and entertaining for one and all. All attendees come away with concrete advice on how to improve their pitch, as well as a greater understanding of the ins and outs of the publishing industry. At the end of the evening, the judges will pick a winner, who will receive an introduction to an agent in their genre.

Sisters on the Fly will present a free flycasting demonstration in Hance Park for women interested in learning the art of flycasting. Children age 12 and up may participate with a parent. Meet in front of the main (East) entrance to Burton Barr Central Library at 12 p.m. Sisters on the Fly -- 'Offering empowerment and sisterhood through exceptional outdoor adventures' As a group of women we challenge ourselves in all that that we set our mind to. There is no age, color, religion or political group. All women who want to share in the adventures of 'sisterhood' are welcome. This 'sisterhood' has grown to more than 3000 women since inception in 1999. 'WE HAVE MORE FUN THAN ANYONE' We encourage you to join us on one of our adventures and let yourself be spoiled rotten, learn to fish, to be a real Western Cowgirl, run rivers, and enjoy pure highway traveling fun. The best part is meeting all those new sisters you didn't even know you had. Our members range in age from 21 to 93, with most being in between.
